

Jyothis Academy (ix) The main purpose of a thermostat in an engine cooling system is to www.amieindia.in

- (a) Allow engine to warm-up quickly
 - (b) Prevent the coolant from boiling
 - (c) Pressurize the system
 - (d) Indicate to the driver the coolant temperature
- (x) The most accurate method of determining frictional power is by
- (a) Willan's line
 - (b) Morse test
 - (c) measurement of brake and indicated power
 - (d) motoring test